Summer 2004, News from Mexico...

Making Disciples—Planting Churches.

Please pray for God to help me in my work at school, especially in mathematics.

Dear Friends, due to popular demand we are making some changes to our newsletter format. Several people (you know who you are) have complained in the past about the lack of more family type news in our letters. In response this issue is dedicated completely to the latest events of in the life of Paloma. We will continue to keep you informed about both church planting, and more personal

It's been over two months now, but we're still discovering confetti in some pretty strange places. On January 14th Paloma celebrated her 6th birthday. There was some raucous piñata busting, and of course, some traditional Mexican cake in the face.

Please pray: That I can have a baby sister, or a puppy. Love Paloma

A stubborn baby tooth required a little encouragement from the dentist, and according to tradition was placed under her pillow at night. South of the border down Mexico way, the hoped for tooth reward is delivered by a small rat (yuk) rather than the "Tooth Fairy."

One day, out of the clear blue, Paloma decided that she wanted to have a candy store. Sol helped her make a list, as Paloma explained exactly the kind of candy that kids like to eat. So far so good, as her desire for financial success has far outweighed the temptation to sample her own merchandise.

A few weeks ago we drove to the coast for a family day at a place called La Tobará. The big attraction is an hour long jungle boat ride featuring, iguanas, turtles, numerous exotic birds, and some really big wild crocodiles.
